FORUM

Starting this week Loyola is to have a fortnightly Thursday Open Forum where students and faculty can meet to discuss controversial issues.

Organiser, Dr. Robert Tittler, of the History Department, says the forums are being introduced to provide more stimulation and motivation for students and faculty to think, discuss and argue about ideas of contemporary interest.

The forums are to offer an atmosphere for a free exchange of thought and will be concerned with ideas and opinions that do not necessarily fit into the structure of formal courses, he says.

Forum Leader this Thursday will be Marcel Denis, Loyola Student Counsel, who will open a discussion on "Justice in Quebec". October 21st leader will be History Department head Bill Akin - subject: The Greening of America. On November 4th English Department Lecturer Keith Henderson will lead a forum on Canadian Literature and Nationalism.

All forums will be in the Hingston Hall Lounge from noon to 1p.m.
